

MEMMO

October 28, 2015

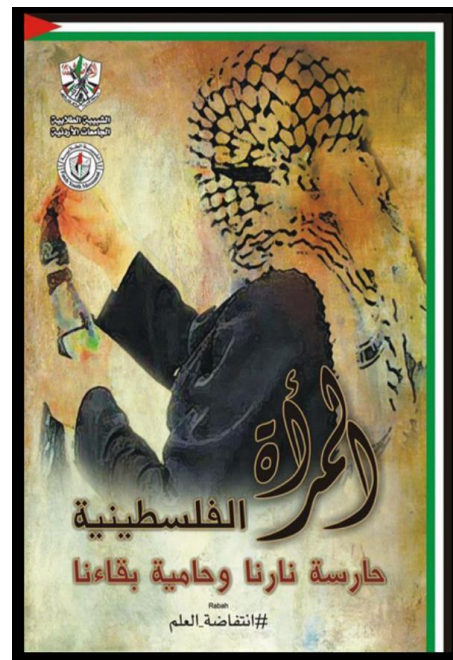

Palestinians Using Social Media to Incite Violence

Extremist Palestinians are utilizing social media's expansive reach to bolster their call for violence against Israelis. Below is a sample of products currently online.

The United States must urge Palestinian leaders to do their utmost to quell this incitement. Palestinian Authority President Mahmoud Abbas has exacerbated tensions with inflammatory remarks about the peace process and the Temple Mount. Instead, he must try to end incitement to violence, condemn the recent wave of attacks, and resume direct peace negotiations with Israel.

A social media graphic calling for the stabbing and murder of Israelis.

A social media graphic calling for Palestinian women to perpetrate terrorist attacks.

A social media graphic praising terrorists who stabbed Israelis.

A social media graphic praising terrorists, who between them killed two Israelis and stabbed seven more. The graphic says: “Our Martyrs [come] in droves our determination is [like] mountains, it does not bow down before the despicable and does not fear arrest.”

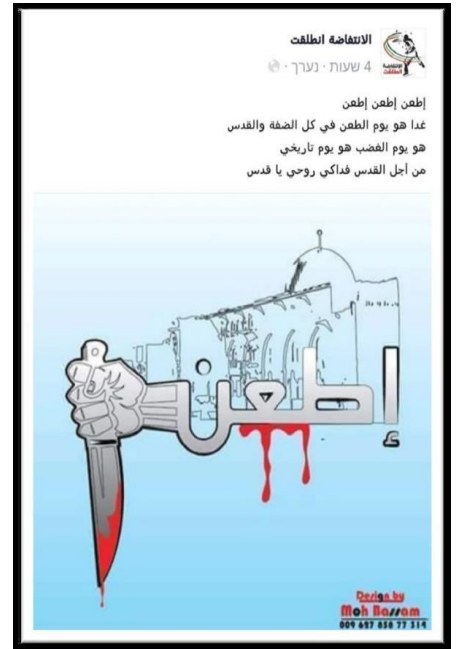

A social media graphic calling for the stabbing of Israelis.

A social media graphic calling for the stabbing of Israelis. The graphic states: “Stick your knife in the heart of your enemy.”

A social media graphic calling for the stabbing of Israelis. The graphic states: “You will not have security anywhere. Go away before your turn to die will come.”

A social media graphic calling for the stabbing of Israelis. The graphic states: “Stab, stab, stab. Tomorrow is stabbing day in all the West Bank and Jerusalem.”