In 1921, the British established the Emirate of Transjordan in the area east of the Jordan River and closed it to Jewish settlement, although Transjordan remained part of the British Mandate for Palestine.